

Alumni help students in job shadowing program

by Pattie Cinelli

Undergraduates who are interested in careers in areas such as vocational rehabilitation, teaching, computer science, the priesthood, park service, insurance, social work or management can learn first hand what a job in that field is like through the Counseling and Placement Center's "job shadowing" program.

Through job shadowing students can observe specific jobs for a short period of time. Approximately 40 alumni have volunteered to be resources for students who can call, write or visit the alumnus on the job. "Job Shadowing was begun last summer as part of career exploration in order to give students direct exposure with another deaf worker," explained Norma Buemi, coordinator of career counseling at the Center. "However," she said, "we don't tell students who to contact. We provide them with a booklet listing those alumni available and it's up to students to contact a person themselves. We feel that shows motivation and a desire to learn more about a particular occupation."

The five career counselors in the career counseling unit of the Center are asking alumni at Gallaudet who attend the reunion this week to volunteer to be a part of the program. "We would like to get videotapes of people answering questions about their jobs," said Buemi. Interested persons can contact the Counseling and Placement Center in Ely, x5638.

Job shadowing is only one way students can learn about careers. The primary emphasis of the career counseling unit is to help students with academic planning and vocational guidance. The program started five years ago with about 45 students and two counselors. However, according to Buemi, about 230 students were seen by counselors since the fall. She said students request career counseling for a variety of reasons. Some are not sure what they want to major in, some want to take interest tests, some want to change majors, some want graduate school information, some are not sure if they belong at Gallaudet and others know their major but don't know what kind of jobs or career to pursue.

Their questions can be answered on an individual basis or in groups. Students' total life styles are taken into consideration during counseling. This concept is called Life Career Development, which is the integration of roles, setting and events of a person's life. In addition, the career counselors teach a Career Development course to all freshmen students, provide consultation and training and conduct career planning workshops.

Students can get help answering the question, "What will I major in?" through using a computer program call "SIGI," the System of Interactive Guidance and Information. SIGI shows students ways to learn more about themselves, about occupations and how to make good decisions, especially MSSD students in the Communication Department's music program gave a short concert for their fellow students on June 11. The music program, new this year, grew out of a student music club and is run by Norman Lederman, Suzanne Manzi and Karen Semanchik. Students in the program plan to offer other concerts in the future.

Elderhostel program begins soon

For the second year in a row, the Elderhostel Program for deaf adults age 60 and over will be held on the Gallaudet campus.

Last year, the Division of Public Services, in conjunction with various units on campus, coordinated the week-long program through the national Elderhostel network. This summer from June 27-July 2, a week of presentations and activities have been designed to meet the needs of hearing impaired senior citizens.

Two separate programs are being offered concurrently this year. About 30 seniors who have begun to experience difficulties due to their recent loss of hearing, and their spouses, will participate in a program on "Hearing Loss in Later Years." Activities for this program are being coordinated by the College for Continuing Education and the National Academy, and faculty for the program has been contributed from the Departments of Audiology and Counseling.

In addition, a new program entitled "A Week in the Arts" is being offered for about 22 deaf seniors and their spouses who are fluent in sign language. This session will be coordinated by the Programs in Adult and Community Education with the Model Secondary School for the Deaf and the Department of Fine Arts contributing faculty members.

The two groups of adults will be together for certain afternoon and evening activities. Overviews of deaf folklore and deaf heritage will be enjoyed by both groups as will captioned films, field trips and a reception at the Edward Miner Gallaudet residence. The Alumni and Public Relations Office and the President's Office will both contribute to these activities.

The educational activities provided in the mornings have been designed to meet the special needs and interests of each group. The recently hearing impaired seniors will learn about adjustment to hearing loss and how to get help for various problems. The other group of deaf seniors will learn about various art forms and deaf artists, including presentations by Eric Malzkuhn on visual theatre and Debbie Sonnenstrahl on art history.

Alumni House dedication scheduled

Everyone on campus is invited to celebrate the re-opening of the Old Gym as an Alumni House on Friday, June 25 at 3 p.m. in the building. Following the dedication of the 101-year-old building, a reception will be held from 3:30-7 p.m.

During the dedication, envelopes featuring a drawing of the Alumni House by artist Ruth Peterson will be sold, and a U.S. Postal Service representative will be on hand to cancel the envelopes with a special hand-stamped cancellation.

The Alumni House will also be open on the afternoon of June 26 for GCAA reunion participants and other interested persons who wish to tour the facility.

Vice President for Business Affairs Paul Nance, who has been at Gallaudet for 16 years, will be leaving campus at the end of the month. He will be on a six-month sabbatical until Dec. 31, 1982, at which time he will retire. Nance came to Gallaudet as its business manager in 1966, and when the reorganization of the College took place, he became vice president for Business Affairs. This division now has 359 employees. Prior to coming to Gallaudet, he was the vice president and business manager of Oklahoma Baptist University for 16 years and also served as the specialist for college business administration with the U.S. Office of Education and vice president and treasurer of Furman University. He received his degree in Business Management from the University of Oklahoma.

Sign classes set for seniors

A two-week sign language experience especially for middle-aged or senior citizens who are interested in gaining manual communication skills for use with deaf people will be held on campus June 28-July 9.

The approach to learning sign language will be informal, and emphasis will be placed on signs needed for conversational use. Instruction will also include such things as sign singing and games. Special needs of participants will be considered, such as gradual hearing loss, and the opportunity will be provided for participants to interact with hearing impaired persons on the Gallaudet campus.

NEWS FLASH--Word has it (although it was not official at press time) that the launching of the Columbia space shuttle on Sunday, June 27 will be captioned live on ABC-TV, Channel 7. Set your decoders to "Text" or check the local papers for the time.

Continuing ed. conference begins

A national conference to review current status and progress of continuing education programming for deaf adults will begin on campus June 28 and will continue through July 2.

The conference participants will explore methods of upgrading and expanding programs to reach more deaf citizens in their communities. They will expand their skills in funding, grantsmanship, organization and recruitment, and will learn about resources and materials at Gallaudet that could be of help to them.

Participants will include previous Demonstration Program (now Programs in Adult and Community Education) trainees and interns in community and continuing education, and current continuing education program managers.

Play tickets available

Tickets to the play "Oh, Stop! Oh, Stop!" by sign language instructor Lynn Jacobowitz, are still available. The performance will be held during the GCAA reunion Thursday, June 24 in the MSSD Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $6. Contact Mary Anne Pugin at x5105 TDD.

MSSD, KDES graduation set

The Model Secondary School for the Deaf and the Kendall Demonstration Elementary School will both hold their graduation ceremonies this week.

MSSD's Commencement will be held Friday, June 25 at 11 a.m. in the Elstad Auditorium. About 90 students will be graduating. Commencement speaker will be Edward Corbett, director of Gallaudet's National Academy.

The Kendall graduation will be held this Tuesday, June 22 at 10 a.m. in the MSSD Auditorium. Eleven Kendall students will be graduating.

Trent Batson is director of the American Studies Program here.

MSSD students model clothing they made in Peggy Reichard's home economics sewing class at a fashion show for other students held June 8.

New instructional catalog published

Teachers of deaf students are always on the lookout for instructional materials which have been adapted to meet the special needs of their students. They will find a wealth of products and information in the new 1982 edition of Panorama, a catalog of products and services offered through Pre-College Outreach, Pre-College Programs.

Panorama describes 119 instructional classroom and professional use products that have been designed especially for hearing impaired elementary and high school level students. The products include course guides, videotapes, captioned slides, workbooks, films and publications, and many of them are being offered for the first time anywhere.

Most of the products offered through the catalog were developed by teachers and instructional designers at the Kendall Demonstration Elementary School and the Model Secondary School for the Deaf. Five of the new products listed were developed by teachers from programs around the country. Many of the new materials address the areas of language development, social/emotional development and career education, which were identified nationally as high need areas by educators of the deaf who had participated in an assessment of needs conducted by Pre-College Outreach.

In addition to the instructional products, there are also a number of services described in the catalog which are available through Outreach's Affiliated Schools Program. The Affiliated Schools Program provides people-to-people services to schools around the country and offers technical assistance and workshops in areas such as parent education, organizational management, program or curriculum development, geography concepts, rewriting materials for the hearing impaired and others.

Deaf entertainers perform June 26

Don't forget that everyone is invited to the "Deaf Entertainers Galore" program Saturday, June 26 during the GCAA Reunion. It gets underway at 8:30 p.m. in Elstad Auditorium. Among the many entertainers scheduled for the event are "Musign" with Rita Corey and Bob Hiltermann, Don Pettingill of Programs in Adult and Community Education, Miss Deaf America Mary Beth Barber and a special appearance by President Edward C. Merrill, Jr. For tickets (cost $5) contact Mary Anne Pugin, x5105 TDD.

Correction

Mike Olson, Archives library associate, should also be credited along with David de Lorenzo with preparing the exhibit of about 200 old photographs of Gallaudet in the Learning Center. The photos will remain on exhibit until September.

Communicative Disorders Research Program

The National Institute of Neurological and Communication Disorders (NINCDS) has announced July 1 as the grant deadline for proposals to its Communicative Disorders Research Program.

Objectives of this program are to support specific research and research training on understanding causes, prevention, diagnosis and treatment of communicative disorders. Among areas of interest listed are disorders of hearing, language, touch, taste and smell; the adverse effects of noise and the research and evaluation of communicative aids.

For additional information, contact the Director, Communicative Disorders Program NINCDS, Federal Building, Room 8A-08, Bethesda, MD 20205, (301) 496-1804.

Director Jack Gannon talks with secretary Verna Domich in the Alumni and Public Relations Office. Gannon is helping coordinate the Deaf Entertainers program for the GCAA reunion.

President's Office Notes

Leonard Elstad returns to Gallaudet

On May 7, 1945 Leonard M. Elstad, a 1923 graduate of Gallaudet College's Normal Department and the head of the Minnesota School for the Deaf, was elected president of Gallaudet College.

Dr. Albert W. Atwood (then chairman of the Board) quoting his biography in his book Gallaudet College, Its First Hundred Years, said, "Outgiving, full of humor, a splendid speaker, unusually gifted in personal relationships, and always ready in debonair fashion for the next chapter in his crowded life, Elstad has proved a most stimulating associate for this writer."

Also, "No one could have given more enthusiasm, more zeal and more tact to the usefulness and growth of Gallaudet College than has President Elstad."

For those old timers at Gallaudet who know Dr. Elstad, these comments will remind you of an old friend. Here's another quote from Dr. Atwood's book that may surprise you: "President Elstad suggested to the directors late in 1945 that it might be necessary to sell the dairy herd because it was not possible to get farm help. The herd of 30 cattle had long supplied the students with fresh milk, and when the students were away in the summer the milk was sold at the 8th Street gate to all who were interested." You may have known that the cattle were here, but you may not have realized that during Dr. Elstad's tenure he witnessed so many changes in the life of the College.

Those of you who witnessed these changes with him will enjoy seeing Dr. Elstad and his family on Kendall Green from June 24-27. They will attend some of the events in connection with the 31st Gallaudet College Alumni Association Triennial Reunion, including the opening of the Alumni House and, of course, the dedication of the Elstad Auditorium on Thursday, June 24 at 3:15 p.m.

For the benefit of staff and faculty who were not privileged to know the third president of Gallaudet, Dr. Elstad was born in Osseo, WI in 1899. He is a graduate of St. Olaf College, holds an MA from Gallaudet College and an LLD from both institutions. He served Gallaudet as an instructor in 1923-24, as principal of Kendall School in 1924-25 and as president from 1945-69. During his tenure, the College underwent a $10 million building program and was accredited by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Leonard Elstad, shown here in the early 60s, will visit Gallaudet during the GCAA reunion. He was the third president of Gallaudet.

Elstad to attend auditorium dedication

The latest word is that Leonard Elstad, Gallaudet's third president, will attend the dedication of Elstad Auditorium, named in his honor. Everyone is invited to attend the dedication on Thursday, June 24 at 3:15 p.m.

A highlight of the dedication will be the showing of a film prepared by the Theatre Arts Department containing clips from both old and new films and tapes connected with deaf people or deafness.

Help with travel now available

A great part of the enjoyment in traveling to 'known destinations' is being able to get there in a relatively short time with a little or no hassles associated with leaving. In order to eliminate or minimize the problems for Gallaudet faculty and staff traveling on College business, the position of travel liaison has been created. Reginald Leonard holds this new position in the Office of Contracts and Risk Management.

In the capacity of liaison, Leonard will assist in coordinating travel arrangements and maintaining open lines of communication between Gallaudet and representatives of Travelworld, the travel agency used by Gallaudet. The process begins with an individual's request to attend an out-of-state seminar, convention or other activity. Once the destination, time and travel order number have been obtained, contact with Travelworld will be made through the office to reserve tickets and develop other special arrangements as necessary.

These are very chaotic times for business in general and the travel industry in particular. Because of airline deregulation and the economy, competition to survive in this arena is tremendous. Rate fluctuations occur daily. Caught in the middle between the airlines' fight to survive and the traveler scouting for a cheaper fare is the one who actually represents the consumer, the travel agent.

During a recent visit to the offices of Travelworld, Leonard had an opportunity to observe their operation and speak with agents about the problems with which they are faced today. According to the majority of agents, their most difficult task is overcoming the perception on the part of many travelers that the most economical fares are not being quoted. An initial call-in requesting reservations is made by an agent who obtains information from an on-line computer system known as Sabre. This information may consist of 40 to 50 different fares for trips scheduled at various times. The agent's job is to attempt to give the traveler the most economical rate for the time he or she is leaving. The travel agent must balance the client's needs with those of the quick changing airline prices and schedules.

In order to facilitate communication between the travel liaison and the Gallaudet traveler regarding this program, a breakfast discussion will be held July 19 at 8:30 a.m. in the Ely Multipurpose Room. Anyone interested in discussing the travel program is invited to attend.

For more information, Leonard can be contacted at x5462.

Gallaudet TV votes for union decertification

Employees in the television production and technical support unit of the College Educational Resources area have voted to decertify the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians union (NABET) as the authorized bargaining agent for them.

Twenty-three employees that include all full and regular part-timers were affected. They were in the classifications of television studio engineers, production specialists, production directors, traffic coordinators, instructional TV developers, electronic technicians, electronic technicians helpers, electro-mechanical and cable technicians and video/audio distribution systems operators.

The election which was held on June 10 was conducted to determine if NABET represented a majority of the interest of the employees in the unit. Thirteen people voted for decertification, seven voted to remain in the union, two votes were contested and one voter was absent.

In March of 1981 in an election conducted by the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB), NABET became the authorized representative of those 23 employees. Contract negotiations began with NABET in July 1981 and continued until February 1982.

After threatening to strike, NABET filed charges with the NLRB alleging that the College was not bargaining in good faith. No contract agreement could be reached and the NLRB found insufficient evidence to establish Gallaudet in violation of any bargaining laws.

This successful decertification election is the second one to occur at Gallaudet College. In December 1979, the Allied International Union of Security Guards and Special Police was also decertified.

career decisions. There are five parts to SIGI which take about one hour each to complete. They are values, locate, compare, planning and strategy. Each section is designed to give specific career-related information and also teach a step in a decision-making process. According to Buemi, Gallaudet is the only college in the area to use SIGI. She pointed out that other schools have requested information on computer system.

The Career Counseling unit also has a career library students can use that contains about 500 different occupational files, books, magazines and pamphlets concerning careers.

Buemi said that after students have made some decisions concerning their majors, job possibilities etc., they are encouraged to apply to the Experiential Programs Off Campus (EPOC) to obtain credit and experience in a job directly related to their major.

In addition to career counseling, the Counseling and Placement Center offers personal counseling, confidential discussion of any issue or conflict of concern to any student and placement counseling for students who wish to develop skills necessary for finding employment. Assistance and information related to full-time, part-time and summer jobs is available.

Reginald Leonard is the new travel liaison at Gallaudet in the Office of Contracts and Risk Management. Leonard will also be working with the office on risk analysis and management, and in writing and reviewing contracts. Leonard has his BS in Speech and Hearing, has completed insurance and finance courses and was previously employed as a financial planning and marketing specialist with Equitable Life Assurance Society.

THG stamp portrait to be unveiled

The portrait of Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet which will appear on a U.S. postage stamp will be unveiled during the GCAA reunion on Saturday, June 26. The unveiling will take place at 4 p.m. on Faculty Row during the Campus Fair.

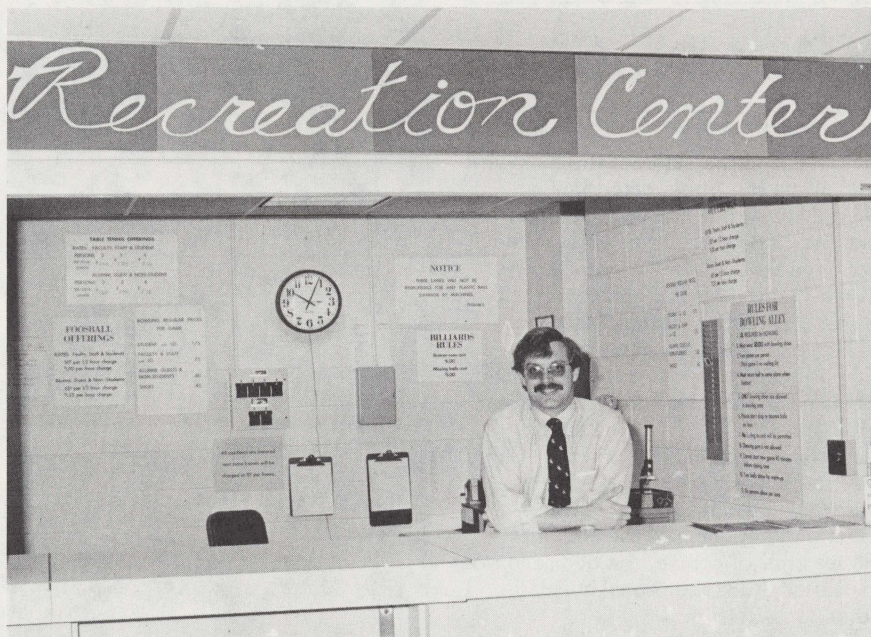

Postmaster General William F. Bolger will assist in the unveiling of the portrait, which will probably appear on a stamp in 1983 or 1984, marking the first time the Postal Service has ever issued a stamp related to deafness. Gallaudet College is named after T.H. Gallaudet.

Pool rules

The Gallaudet swimming pool in Hughes Gym will be open the following hours through Aug. 14: Monday-Friday from 11:45-1 p.m., 3:30-5:30 p.m. and 6:30-9 p.m.; Saturday from 12-5 p.m. and Sunday from 1-5 p.m. and 6:30-9 p.m.

The following rules have been prepared to promote the health, safety and welfare of members and their guests:

1. Pool may be used only when officially open and a certified lifeguard is on duty.
  2. Children six years of age and under, or any non-swimmer, must be accompanied by a parent or guardian 18 years or older while on the premises.
  3. Any person whom the guard on duty feels is not capable of swimming in deep water, must perform a swimming test for the guard (2 pool widths) before being allowed in deep water.
  4. Showers must be taken before entering pool.
  5. The following unsafe practices are prohibited in the pool area: running, wrestling, pushing others into the water, diving in shallow area, dunking, ball playing when crowded, hanging on diving board, more than one person on diving board at one time, jumping or diving sideways from diving board, swimming into the diving area, jumping or diving backwards from pool edge and any other practice considered by the guard on duty to be unsafe.
  6. No food, refreshments, chewing gum or smoking in pool area.
  7. Only swimming suit may be worn; cut-offs and T-shirts are not permitted.
  8. Parents must stay with youngsters.
  9. Infants in diapers may not use swimming pool.
  10. Shoes are not permitted on pool decks.
  11. Animals are not permitted in the pool area or outside on the patio.
  12. During lightning, the patio and pool will be cleared until the lifeguard gives permission to re-open the pool. Please wait in locker room until the lifeguards re-open the pool.
  13. No spitting will be allowed in or around the pool area.
  14. Anyone with runny noses, rashes, open sores, etc. will not be permitted in the pool.
  15. Anyone with shoulder length hair or longer must wear a bathing cap.
- Anyone with questions about pool use can contact Anita Marchitelli, the pool manager, or the Physical Education Department at x5680 or 5682 voice, or x5124 TDD.

Advocacy Notes

Recent P.L. 94-942 cases: Lindy Grkman and Stephen Eberle

by Merv Garrettson

A welcome Christmas gift for Lindy Sue Grkman and her parents was a Dec. 26, 1981 verdict rendered by Judge Dumbauld, U.S. senior district judge for the Western District of Pennsylvania. The Court ruled against the Pennsylvania State Department of Education and the Allegheny County Intermediate Unit in supporting placement of Lindy Sue in a special school for the deaf, the DePaul Institute of Pittsburgh.

Judge Dumbauld's opinion statement, which must be something of a classic, quotes Justice Robert H. Jackson in stating "... the Court is again called upon unwillingly to function as a super-superintendent of schools ... we act in these matters not by authority of our competence but by force of our commissions."

He expressed his belief that the purpose of the Court is to further the best interests of the child, within the framework of applicable law, rather than to classify circumstances presented as neatly as possible under relevant rubrics and legalistic concepts. The judge added that "Begriffsjurisprudenz and bureaucratic self-fulfillment will be given secondary status."

In ruling that a special school for the deaf was the appropriate educational placement for this nine-year-old girl, Judge Dumbauld noted that the goal of "mainstreaming" might promote socialization "but does not promote maximum effective utilization of the pupil's time in obtaining skills necessary for a deaf person."

On April 7-8, 1982 the case of 12-year-old Stephen Eberle was heard before Judge Barron McCune, another federal judge for the Western District of Pennsylvania. Ruling against the Board of Public Education of the School District of Pittsburgh, the judge ordered that the deaf student remain at Western Pennsylvania School for the Deaf (WPSD) until about June, 1983, at which time his placement may be reviewed.

The Eberles had been fighting the city system since 1976. Last year Roz Rosen, dean of the College of Continuing Education and this writer testified in favor of Stephen's placement at WPSD at an administrative hearing which ruled against the boy. In this recent federal case, the writer again served as main witness for the Eberle family.
